FOUR DIE IN SHIP BLAST

Sailors on Lake Vessel Caught in Engine Room Literally Cooked to Death

SURVIVORS SWIM TO SHORE

Driven to Panic by Screams and Prayers of Dying Comrades, Men Brave Waves
After Lifeboat Capsizes

Caught in the wrecked engine room of the steam barge Maggie Marshall, from Maestee, now helpless three miles off Kenosha shore, four of the crew were literally cooked to death by steam which shot with terrific force from the broken valves and pipes of the boilers Tuesday night. Shut off from escape by battened hatches and broken timbers the victims of the explosion died in agony, screaming out prayers for help.

Three other members of the crew of thirteen, driven to desperation and in a panic after watching the suffering of their mates, started for the shore in an open boat, but were forced to swim the last mile against a bitter north wind when the frail craft was capsized in the gale. The men were almost dead from cold and exposure when dragged from the water and could give only incoherent accounts of the number of dead and injured in the explosion that tore the very heart out of the vessel.

In delirium, the men who swam through the icy waters in the teeth of the biting wind, could talk of naught else save the terrible suffering of the men who were caught like animals in a trap and the flesh almost cooked from their bones by the scalding clouds of steam. Even when almost unconscious themselves, the last cries of their dying comrades rang in the ears of the men who swam to shore in a desperate relief effort.

The explosion came without warning and while several of the crew were warning themselves in a snug corner of the engine room. With a roar that shook the vessel to her keel, a steam pipe burst, followed a moment later by a terrifying crash as a main valve of the engine was torn off and sent hurtling through the air to break through the partition at the stairway. Carried down by the impact, great timbers fell and blocked the only egress from the engine room.

Screaming in agony from the first scald of the steam, which shot and roared from the burst pipes and valves, the imprisoned men fought and tore at one another to reach the blocked stairway. All reached it, only to find that escape was cut off.

With each moment the cloud of steam increased, and the men still tore at the wrecked partition and begged for help from their terrified crewmates, who chopped and hammered at the fallen timbers with axes. With great pressure of the boilers behind it the cloud of death encroached on the desperately fighting victims, until with piercing screams of agony they dropped to the floor, one by one, and died.

Driven frantic by the screams of agony and the hiss of escaping steam, and believing that the vessel might at any moment be blown from the water by a second explosion, N. C. Thompson, Otto Frank and Alexander Forstran swung a small boat from the davits and started to pull for the shore, two miles away. Just as they quit the vessel other members of the crew dropped the anchor and hoisted a flag of distress.

The men in the boat, tossed about by the waves, began a grueling fight to reach the shore and relief for those who remained behind. Time and time again the boat was almost capsized, only to right herself. A mile from shore the little craft was struck by a cross wave and carried under.

Chilled by the wind, the three men started out for shore. Shouting to one another as they breast the waves, they were enabled to remain close together. For two hours, tossed about and carried under many times, they fought against a north wind until they were sighted from shore.

A Suggested Revision.

"Richly endowed, we are gathered together here in the sight of the almighty, and on the face of this company, to join together this man and this woman in holy matrimony, which is to be enviable among all men, and, therefore, not to be entered into rashly or unadvisedly, but discreetly, carefully and in the fear of bankruptcy. For the sake of this town and country estate these two persons come now to be joined. If any man can show just cause why these interests may not be lawfully merged, let him now speak, or else hereafter forever accept their invitations."—Puck.

GRAND REPUBLICAN RALLY

First Meeting of the Campaign Held in Antioch, Many Attend.

The Republican rally held at the opera house Tuesday evening was attended by a large and enthusiastic audience who gathered to hear the questions of the day discussed by able and fluent speakers.

The speakers arrived via automobiles being brought here by Drs. Taylor and Shaffer in their machines.

The meeting opened at eight o'clock with E. C. Salin as chairman, who first introduced Ralph J. Dady, candidate for State's attorney, who gave a short but interesting talk on the political situation after which Lewis O. Brockway, candidate for circuit clerk delivered a pleasing address. Both spoke of their relative campaigns and in each instance the addresses were well received.

Next Coroner Taylor of Libertyville favored the audience with a few well chosen remarks. Robert Connolly, chairman of the county central committee was next introduced and addressed the audience for a space of about twenty minutes, after which Congressman George Edmund Foss delivered the principal address of the evening.

He spoke at length on national issues, strongly endorsing William Howard Taft and made an able appeal for the endorsement of the republican protective tariff measures. He gave a striking illustration of the democratic slogan "shall the people rule," when he said that the total vote which elected eight congressmen in Mississippi was only 20,000, giving figures in each district to elect one congressman, thus showing plainly what the democratic party thought about the people ruling.

He said that in the Congressional record the only instance where the democratic party had over done anything to solve the trust question, was when the democratic majority of the congressional committee which investigated certain trusts landed in the report that they had no recommendations or remedies to offer and would leave the matter over to the next congress.

He also spoke of the long and continued support and of the many favors extended to him by the people of Lake County. His speech was enthusiastically received.

The Antioch band rendered several selections on the street during the early part of the evening and the orchestra furnished music during the meeting, and taking it as a whole this meeting was one of the most interesting that Antioch has ever had.

DEMOCRATS TO RALLY SATURDAY EVENING NEXT

There will be a Democratic rally Saturday evening at the Antioch opera house at eight o'clock. The speakers of the evening will be Hon. Western Starr, candidate for congress in this district, Hon. William H. Holly, Hon. Quinn O'Brien, Hon. Thos. F. Burns, of Bolivar, minority representative of this district. The Antioch male quartette will give selections. Hon. John J. Morley, precinct committeeman, will introduce the honorable speakers.

TRADE MARKS.

Sherlock Holmes Picks Out the Vacantists and Labels Them.

Sherlock Holmes, seated on the board walk, languidly injected a pipe of cocaine into his subnormal arm. "My dear Watson," said the detective, "let us beguile an hour by picking out the occupations of these vacationists. In their cheap white flannels they all think they look like millionaires, but—ha, ha—what a delusion!"

"There goes a waiter. Waiters are to be told by the size of their feet and the soft, careful way they set them down."

"The man in the imitation Panama hat is a tanner. His clear and ruddy complexion gives him away. The tanning trade imparts to the face a peculiarly healthy look. Why shouldn't it? What is good for dead skins must be good for living ones."

"She is a cook, the stout, scarlet lady getting weighed. Her fire, of course, gave her that unmistakable color, but it was not the eating of food that made her so fat. No; cooks have notoriously poor appetites. It was the inhalation that filled her out. Cooks inhale their fat. That is cheaper for the mistress, isn't it?"

"The little, thin chap in the large bathing suit is a groom. All good grooms are small and bowlegged, and they all wear tight trousers and are partial to brown."

"Do you see, my dear Watson, the stately man whose overtures the girl in white just repulsed? Well, he is an actor. The muscles in his face show it. Actors, you know, by the continual practice of expression, develop face muscles as marked as the arm muscles of a baseball pitcher."

INSANE PARENT MURDERS INFANT SON

Peter Blomstrom of Waukegan, Seized With a Mania to Kill, Choked His Four Year Old Son to Death on Last Tuesday Evening

SPATTERED THE CHILD'S BRAINS ABOUT WALLS OF SITTING ROOM

Grabbing the Child From Its Mother's Arms Blomstrom Chokes the Boy to Death While Mother Searches for Aid—Most Brutal Affair Ever Chronicled in the Annals of the History of Lake County

Seized with a mania to kill, which came upon him without warning or premonitory symptom, Peter Blomstrom of Waukegan choked his four year old son to death Tuesday evening, spattered the child's brains about the walls of the sitting room in a frenzy of insanity and might have killed a man who ran in to grapple with him but for the opportune arrival of several neighbors.

Waukegan has never known a tragedy like it and the brutality of it was made the little suburb sick at heart. The boy, Paul Blomstrom, was a bright, happy youngster with a smile for everybody, with an overwhelming affection for his father. Blomstrom had always been devoted to him and the mere fact that he killed him is taken as sufficient evidence of insanity.

Peter Blomstrom, who resides at the corner of Tenth street and Lenox avenue, Waukegan, at six o'clock Tuesday evening murdered his infant son Paul by strangling, choking and then finally beating the child's head on the hard polished floor of the dining room at his home. Blomstrom has been adjudged insane by all who have seen him since the tragedy.

Jumping from the chair in which he was sitting as the whistle blew the hour of six, Blomstrom grabbed the little lad from his mother's arms. The mother fled in terror from the house, calling for help as she raced down the street.

There was no help in sight at the time and she went to the rear door of a neighbor's house.

In the meantime John E. Hall, foreman of the road mill at the American Steel and Wire company, under whom Blomstrom has been employed, entered the Blomstrom residence through the side entrance, thinking to enquire as to Mr. Blomstrom's physical condition, as he had learned in the morning that he had been feeling a little bit under the weather.

As Hall entered the residence the sight that met his eyes was enough to have him drop dead with fear. There in the middle of the floor lay the corpse of Blomstrom's youngest son, covered with its own blood, while towering over it stood the madman, frantically waving his blood-covered arms in the air.

"I'll kill you, too," shouted Blomstrom as he observed the intruder. Then he grappled with Hall and for at least five minutes the men fought for supremacy, the one thinking only of saving himself from the hands of an insane murderer, the other thinking of nothing but murder.

Just what occurred during the five minutes the men struggled over the corpse of the dead child, Hall says he will never know. Finally, with a supreme effort Hall forced his opponent from him just as the side door was opened by neighbors.

Help had arrived. The frantic mother had scoured the neighborhood for help, but too late to save her son.

Carl Bjork, a fellow workman, entered the house just as Hall put Blomstrom to flight. There in the room stood Hall with blood trickling down his cheek from a wound in his forehead. By this time Blomstrom had taken refuge in the cellar.

Without fear or danger, Bjork, who is a Swede of remarkable strength, rushed down the cellarway in search of the murderer. As he neared the foot of the stairs he heard Blomstrom shout, "Here I am; come and take me."

Bjork did. He rushed over to where Blomstrom stood and in a very short time he had control of the insane murderer.

Soon after Bjork had succeeded in quelling Blomstrom, the police, who had been summoned by neighbors, entered the house. The moment he caught sight of the police he jumped to his feet and made a desperate attempt to escape.

The police, with the aid of Mr. Hall and Bjork, succeeded in holding him and the handcuffs were applied.

A short time ago Blomstrom received notice from his foreman telling him that he had been scheduled to change shifts.

Instead of working days he was compelled to go on the night force in the road mill. Since that time the fact of being separated from the men with whom he has worked for the past seventeen years in the same old mill has caused him to become despondent, and this is believed to have caused him to go insane.

Saturday evening Blomstrom complained of feeling ill. He retired early but was unable to sleep.

Upon arising Tuesday morning he informed his wife that he did not think he would be able to go to work that day. Mrs. Blomstrom notified Mr. Hall, her husband's foreman at the mill, who resides but a few doors west of their residence.

Throughout the day Blomstrom was seized with fits, during which time he would constantly fight with himself and with imaginary enemies, and the children were allowed to play on the street most of the day.

Mr. Blomstrom's brother soon arrived and through his influence the news of the death of the child was kept from the mother. Throughout the evening she begged to be allowed to visit her child, whom she thought was alive but injured.

LAKE COUNTY BOY IS REPORTED AS DESERTER

Clarence M. Fike, of Company C, Fourth cavalry, whose parents reside near Libertyville, Ill., is reported to have deserted from Fort Meade, S. D. on the first day of the month.

Fike enlisted in the army on the fifth day of June, 1908, for three years.

He was transferred from the post at Fort Sheridan to that at Fort Meade, S. D. soon after he enlisted and he has not visited in this section of the country since.

Friends who heard of his rash action Tuesday morning refused to believe the report. Fike is twenty-two years of age and was born and raised in Lake County. "If he has deserted the army," said an old friend, "he will return to this section of the country, as I have heard repeatedly that he was not pleased with the situations at Fort Meade or with the army life."

R. SHOTLIFF DIES SUDDENLY AT WILMOT

Ransom M. Shotliff, one of the pioneer residents of Kenosha county and one of the best known of the residents of the village of Wilmot, died at his home in that village just after one o'clock Wednesday morning. Death resulted from heart disease. Mr. Shotliff had been in the best of health on Tuesday and had worked all day at his trade of plastering. He returned home just after five o'clock and complained of being ill and Dr. Becker was called. A little later he became unconscious and remained in that condition until his death.

The deceased was sixty years of age and had resided at Wilmot for more than fifty years. He is survived by a widow and two sons.

The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, the Wilmot Odd Fellows of which order he was a member, having charge of the services. A delegation of Antioch Odd Fellows will attend.

A Life Job.

"I want to put an ad. in your paper," said the weary looking man. "Make it: 'Wanted—A situation, any old job.'"

"Shall I say 'wages no object?'" suggested the clerk.

"No, make it 'object matrimony.' If I could get acquainted with a decent job I'd be willing to marry it for life."—Catholic Standard.

STOP CHAUFFEUR WITH GUN

A. Thompson of Chicago Arrested on Charge of Smashing Mail Cart.

A man who gave his name as A. A. Thompson and his residence at Chicago was arrested at the point of a gun by the chief of police of Winthrop Harbor, on the charge that his reckless handling of his automobile has caused the overturning and consequent smashing of the rural delivery wagon which was being driven by Charles T. Meill, of Zion City.

According to the statement of the Zion police Meill was driving south Tuesday morning when he noticed an automobile approaching him from the south. He turned to one side giving the machine one half of the road. Despite this fact it is charged that the driver of the car refused to judge an inch from the center of the road. The horse became frightened and shied to one side overturning the wagon. It was completely demolished by the fall.

Without pausing to ascertain the amount of damage that his action had caused the driver of the car is said to have sped on.

Meill at once called up the Zion City police but the auto had passed through Zion so the police of Winthrop Harbor were asked to detain the car.

The request was obeyed to a letter and the arrest was made at the point of the gun. The driver was stopped and taken back to Zion City where he was turned over to the postmaster. He will be kept there pending the arrival of Federal authorities as his alleged crime was against the government. There were three other occupants of the car, one man and two women.

SALEM YOUTH IS CHARGED WITH ARSON

John Levandowski was arrested by Chief of Police O'Hare on Monday afternoon on a charge of arson, it being claimed that he had set a number of fires in corn shocks in the town of Salem. The fires did considerable damage to the farms in that part of the county and the farmers are anxious to have Levandowski prosecuted. The boy is sixteen years of age and the principal evidence against him was given by John Grabawicz, who is alleged to have been his companion. The hearing of the case was continued for a week and the boy sent to jail to await trial. It is claimed that many fires have been set by boys in the county and the police are anxious to make an example of Levandowski in order to put a stop to this kind of work.

WILLIAM V. CULL OLD PIONEER PASSED AWAY

The funeral of the late William V. Cull one of the best known of the pioneers of Kenosha county, who died at his home in Brighton last Saturday morning, was held at the family residence in Brighton Monday afternoon and was attended by a large concourse of friends.

Mr. Cull was widely known among the earlier settlers of the county and a great number of the men who had been prominent in the early years went to Brighton to attend the services, which were of a very impressive nature. Among the number gathered to pay this last tribute were many well known Kenosha people.

After the services at the home, the remains were taken to the family plot at the Mount cemetery at Salem where they were laid at rest by the side of the wife of the deceased who died several years ago.

WHITE ISLAND.

One of New Zealand Group Always Enveloped in Clouds of Steam.

White Island derives its name from the clouds of white steam in which it appears to be continually enveloped. Its area is only 600 acres and its height about 880 feet above sea level.

In form and color it is like a rearing camel, white its interior, with its gray, weather-beaten, almost perpendicular cliffs, recalls the Coliseum at Rome. Overhanging the southern landing place stands a column of rock closely resembling a sentinel, which has been dedicated to the memory of Capt. Cook. The water of the island is of a pale green hue, and anything dipped into it becomes a red brick color. The fumes of sulphur are always plainly perceptible.

On a fine moonlight night a wonderful sight is afforded to anyone who will sit in an open boat in one of the lakes of the island. Covering an area of 80 acres is an immense caldron, hissing and snorting and sending forth volumes of poisonous steam, while all chances of egress appear to be denied by the steep, silent and gloomy cliffs.—British Australian.

EDWARD SHEAHEN VICTIM

Was Conductor on C. & M. Electric and Accident Happens at Highland Park and Dies on Way to Hospital

Edward Sheahen of Highland Park, a conductor on the Chicago and Milwaukee electric railroad, died while being taken to the Evanston hospital Tuesday morning after having had both of his lower limbs severed from his body as the result of a railroad accident which occurred south of Winnetka at seven twenty-two Tuesday morning.

In some unaccountable manner Sheahen is supposed to have lost his balance and fallen directly under the wheels of the advancing work train.

The brakeman who was assisting Mr. Sheahen was the first to observe the disaster. He gave orders for the engineer to stop the train. This was done and Sheahen was later picked up from beneath one of the work cars.

His lower limbs had been severed from his body.

He was placed on the work train which was headed south for Evanston.

The race for life was on. The motor-man on the work train turned on the full power but to no avail, Sheahen died before they reached their destination. When interviewed, Claim Agent Vivian gave the foregoing account of Mr. Sheahen's death.

There is also another rumor and report as to the manner in which he met his death, although there is no doubt that Mr. Vivian's account of the sad accident is correct.

The brakeman so the report goes, ordered the train advanced thus causing the accident. This report circulated throughout Highland park Tuesday morning.

Conductor Sheahen is very well known wherever a branch line of the electric operates. He was one of the first employees on the line.

He leaves a wife and two children to mourn his demise. His home was at Highland Park.

FISHWOMEN ON THEIR DIGNITY.

English Show Up a Police Inspector—He Is Removed.

A telegram from Cherbourg, England, describes a strange happening there. The fishermen had brought in a big catch of fish and shellfish and the market was just opening when a police inspector stepped up to one of the fishwives to make a note of an infringement of the local by-laws.

The woman had stepped two yards further than the by-law allowed her to do. A minute later a second police complaint was made against a woman who had undertaken to sell the fish of a fishwife who was ill. A third complaint was made against a fisherman who went out of his turn in putting up his catch for sale.

The news of the police officiousness spread quickly. Many of the women were still bargaining with the fishermen, but the last bids and counter-bids could not be heard for the shouts of the women established behind the fish baskets on the market place. In two minutes the word was passed round that the fishwives were going to close the market in order to show their indignation against the police.

For some time all was hurry and bustle, within ten minutes the market square had been cleared and the fish returned to the boats in which they had been brought into harbor. Thus it was that the 75,000 inhabitants of Cherbourg were without fish. The strike came to an end, owing to the removal by the municipal authorities of the obnoxious police inspector.

Ostrich Feathers in Demand.

The demand for ostrich feathers of high class is greater than the supply, and the farmers of the Cape and Egypt who give intelligence to the raising of ostriches make large profits, just as the ostrich farmers of southern California have done.

SYNOPSIS.

The Escapade opens, not in the romance preceding the marriage of Ellen Slocum, a Paritan miss, and Lord Carrington of England, but in their life after settling in England. The scene is placed, just following the revolution, in Carrington castle in England. The Carringtons, after a house party, engaged in a family tilt, caused by jealousy. Lord Carrington and his wife each made charges of faithlessness against the other in continuation of the quarrel. First objecting against playing cards with the guests, Lady Carrington agreed to cut cards with Lord Strathgate, whose attentions to Ellen had become a sore point with Carrington. The loss of $100,000 failed to perturb her, and her husband then cut for his wife's I. O. U. and his honor, Carrington winning. The incident closed except that a liking for each other apparently arose between Lady Carrington and Lord Strathgate. Additional attentions of Lord Carrington to Lady Cecily and Lord Strathgate to Lady Carrington compelled the latter to vow that she would leave the castle. Preparing to flee, Lady Carrington and her chum Deborah, an American girl, met Lord Strathgate at two a. m., he agreeing to see them safely away. Ellen fled, Strathgate driving. He attempted to take her to his castle, but she left him stunned in the road when the carriage met with an accident. She and Deborah then struck out for Portsmouth, where she intended to sail for America.

CHAPTER VII.—Continued.

Suddenly Carrington thought of the door not often used that opened into the hall from her bedroom. He cursed himself for a fool for not having thought of it before. He ran thither at once in spite of the fact that his conduct was attracting the attention of the servants passing to and fro about their various duties. He tried the handle of the door, which was shut, and found it was unlocked. He threw it open. The bed had not been tenanted, yet Ellen had certainly undressed, for the gown and other things she had worn the night before lay in a tumbled, confused heap on the floor just where she had kicked them off.

My lady's desk stood open before him. A piece of paper caught his eye. He dropped the slipper, darted toward it, opened the paper, which was addressed to him, and read the following:

"The enclosed pays my last debt to Lord Carrington. When he reads this, I shall be on the way to my own land. With the money which he won, he can buy himself Lady Cecily without the formality of a marriage ceremony and in her arms he can forget the woman he shamed, whom he once loved and who once loved him."

From the paper as he had torn it open, an enclosure had fallen. He stooped and picked it up. It was the cheque on Ellen's bankers for twenty odd thousand pounds. My lord's brain reeled as he stared from the cheque to the note. It was as if he had been struck some powerful blow over the heart and was for the moment paralyzed. He snuck down in a chair and gazed stupidly about him in great bewilderment.

And then he heard his name called.

"My lord, my lord!"

It was the aged butler coming up the stairs, white-faced and panting.

"What is it, Jepson?" cried Carrington, confronting the man. "Speak out. What has happened?"

"One of the footmen, Thomas, my lord, has just come in from the stables. He says that he found the three stable boys who were there last night bound and gagged."

"What!" cried Lord Carrington. "That's not all, sir," continued the faithful Jepson, "the coachman—"

"Has he gone?" queried the earl. "No, my lord. He was bound and gagged, too, in the coach house."

"Who did it?"

"He says the earl of Strathgate."

"Impossible!" protested Carrington, fighting against the awful suspicion that entered his heart.

"It's quite true, my lord."

Carrington dashed back madly into his wife's room. He had known that she had hanging in her closet the sailor's suit which she had worn on her cruises with him. A dark suspicion had come to him. He tore open the door of the closet and, tore from the hooks one after another the gorgeous dresses which hung there. He did not find what he sought. She had evidently worn it away. He turned from the room, ran through the hall and down the flight of stairs to the library. The coachman awaited him.

"Who was with Strathgate when he bound you last night?"

"A young man, I take it, my lord," answered the coachman. "The room was dark, with only the firelight, and I couldn't see very well. Lord Strathgate threatened me with a pistol, or I'd have made outcry and resistance. He kept me covered with my head turned away. The young man handed him straps to lash me."

"You coward!" cried Carrington, fiercely turning on the man.

"I beg your pardon, your lordship. I'm afraid of no man who comes at me with his fists, but that pistol."

He threw open the door and the three boys came in.

"Who was with Lord Strathgate last night?" questioned Carrington fiercely. The stable boys shuffled uneasily.

"By heaven!" cried Carrington in tones of thunder, "answer me or I'll have you flogged all over the place."

"'Twas a slight young man," said one of them, finally. "We didn't recognize who it was," he continued, boldly lying. "Lord Strathgate is a very imperious man and he covered us with his pistol and swore if we made a sound he'd blow our brains out, and the young man tied our hands and the two of 'em gagged us."

"Couldn't you see who the young man was?"

"No, my lord; not in the dark."

"Which team did they take?" said Carrington, cutting in.

"The boys, my lord."

"The boys! The best team in the stable and the travelling carriage?"

"Your lordship, yes, sir," returned the coachman.

"That will do. Go you and saddle Sallor and the best rider among you boys saddle the best horse left in the stable and make ready to come with me. See that your pistols are in the holsters."

A moment later there was a timid knock on the door and at Carrington's bidding the woman who looked after Mistress Deborah entered.

"Your lordship, Mistress Slocum's room is empty."

The maid disappeared, only to give place to Admiral Kephart.

"What's the trouble, my lord?" said the admiral, rolling into the room, giving evidence in the disorder of his costume of the haste in which he had made his toilet.

"Lady Carrington has gone. She left me this."

He drew from the pocket of his waistcoat the note, added the cheque to it, and extended them to the admiral.

The old man took them, read them slowly, folded them up and returned them to the injured husband.

"Carrington," he said, "you've been a fool."

"I know it," returned the other. "The idea," said the admiral, "of your giving a look to that painted old coquette, when you had such a woman as Lady Ellen for your wife."

"You can't say anything too harsh for me, admiral."

"I'm glad you are awake to the situation. Now the thing to do is to clap on sail in chase, overhaul her, bring her to, make your apologies handsomely and fetch her back to anchorage under convoy. Then we'll clear out this crew."

"There's Seton!" ejaculated Carrington, peering through the window. "Charles!" he called. Seton turned. "Come here quickly, hear a hand."

There was that in Carrington's voice which indicated some grave emergency. Seton ran across the lawn and vaulted right through the window.

"Lady Carrington's gone," said Carrington, bluntly. "Did you know anything about it?"

"You insult me!" cried Seton, fiercely. "How should I know anything about it?"

"You've been hanging around her ever since you came here. I've caught you a dozen times alone together."

"Lord Carrington," cried Seton, "I'll not be catenched and insulted this way another moment."

"It was you or Strathgate," continued Carrington, hotly, "one or the other of you, but Strathgate's got ahead of you. He's gone and Lady Ellen with him."

"Great heavens! You can't mean it!"

"I shall start after them," said Sir Charles. "If I come across them first, I shall send word to you, and I trust that you'll do the same by me."

"Don't fear," answered Carrington as the other turned and dashed out of the room.

"You'll find me at Portsmouth, Carrington," said the old admiral. "I'll be glad to render you any assistance in my power. You won't fail to call upon me, will you?"

"I will not. Will you tell the duke and duchess and the others that they may take their own time in departing, but that they better be out of the house before I get back."

"God help and God bless you!" said the admiral as Carrington ran out of the room.

A few moments later, booted, spurred, cloaked, armed for his ride, he came down the hall. An early riser for her on that eventful day was Lady Cecily. Her maid had carried a strange bit of gossip to her.

"Bernard," she cried, catching him by the arm, "what a relief! What a release!"

My lord stood very straight and tall. His eyes snapped viciously. Lady Cecily must have been blind not to have seen how thin the ice upon which she trod.

"She has gone, the little country girl," cooed Lady Cecily. "When you have taken vengeance upon Strathgate you will come back to me, and remember that whatever happens to you, I care very much. I can't forget your lips last night."

"Madam," said my lord, very stiff and stern. "I, too, cannot forget last night. I was a fool then, but I shall be no longer. Will your ladyship kindly release me?"

"What, Carrington!" she cried in dismay.

"I mean it both now and forever. And hark, ye, madam, when I return with my wife, I think she will not be best pleased to find you here."

"Are you going back to that?"

And Lady Cecily used a rough word better fitted for the camp than the court.

"You Jezabel!" cried my lord, raising his hand as if to strike her.

He was white with passion and indignation. Lady Cecily shrank back against the door terrified. My lord's hand fell by his side, and without another glance at her he strode down the gravel path where the lightest, and best of the grooms held two horses.

My lord sprang to the back of Sallor, put a spur into the horse and raced madly down the driveway, past the lodge gate, out upon the main road, and turned his head toward Portsmouth.

It was west, therefore, that the young soldier rode, his mind in a turmoil as to whether Strathgate had run away with Mistress Deborah or Lady Ellen, and his soul filled with hot indignation against his host on a number of counts.

Neither of them knew that two hours before a muddy, blood-stained man, riding horseback upon a coach horse from which the traces and other parts of harness had been cut, had passed the gate on the way to Portsmouth at a gallop that bade fair to kill the horse. Strathgate had recovered consciousness after awhile, and thinking that the two women would go back to Portsmouth by some means or other, had mounted the less tired of the two horses, somewhat refreshed by the half hour's rest, and had galloped in that direction.

CHAPTER VIII.

Sir Charles Picks Up the Course. It is necessary that we take up the course of the different actors in the drama serially until they converge at some point which shall be the focus of all their directions.

It was about eight o'clock when Carrington and Seton left the hall, turning their backs upon one another, in beginning this famous man and woman hunt. Seton, mounted on his best horse, covered the ground at a great pace. Naturally he made much better time than Strathgate had, for all his furious driving of the bays. It was half past nine when at a bend in the road he came upon the overturned carriage. Here was tangible evidence that he was on the right track. He brought his horse to a full stop and dismounted to examine into the situation.

The cause of the accident was obvious to the simplest mind. He was not content with determining that, however. So he inspected the carriage with the minutest care. He was not long in discovering the hole made by Ellen's pistol ball through the seat, and he instantly divined that some one in the carriage had tried to kill the driver.

USED HIS STORED KNOWLEDGE.

When High School Learning Came in Handy to Business Man.

"I used for the first time to-day something I learned 15 years ago, said a writer in the Milwaukee Sentinel.

"It was the application of a principle in geometry in relation to the inscribing of a hexagon in a circle, which I learned when at the high school. I had an order placed for some taboretts (that is flower stands) given me and the party that gave me the order wants the tops 16 inches across. Well, that was easy enough to fill, but beside that the sides were to be hexagonal, so I had to sit down and figure out how much five-eighths-inch wood would have to be leveled off to have the parts fit exactly. Here is where I used my geometry."

"Daniel Webster is quoted as saying that he once used a fact which had lain dormant for 14 years, so I have him beaten by a year."

"You often hear people say 'What is the use of learning this?' seeing no use for it at the time, but things which at the time seem most impracticable are often later of use. That is one of the complaints in our public schools, but as in my case it may some day prove of use."

Quite Likely. "We thought," said the reporter, "you might care to say something about these charges against you."

"No," replied the crooked public official, "I believe that 'silence is golden.'"

"Well," replied the reporter, "perhaps the public might believe it's merely gilt in this case."—Philadelphia Press.

RELIEF FOR VICTIMS

MICHIGAN IS QUICK TO HELP ITS FIRE-STRICKEN PEOPLE.

GOVERNOR ISSUES APPEAL

Detroit Also Adopts Prompt Measures—General Situation Improved—But Conditions Are Pitiful Among Survivors.

Detroit, Mich. — Reports from the forest fire district of northern Michigan were fragmentary Sunday, but there were indications of improvement in the general situation so far as imminent danger to life and property was concerned.

But as to the victims who survived the destruction of their homes and villages, conditions are pitiful in the extreme with the likelihood of greater distress and many deaths from exposure in the event of a sudden drop of temperature falling upon the half clothed refugees camped in box cars and open fields.

Relief Measures Taken.

Gov. Fred M. Warner Sunday issued an appeal to the people of Michigan for contributions, and on call of Mayor William B. Thompson of Detroit a special meeting of the common council was held Monday morning to consider the matter of contributing relief. A public meeting also was held in the mayor's office at noon for the same purpose and Bishop Charles D. Williams of the Episcopal diocese of Michigan, who has just returned from the fire district, described conditions as he witnessed them. The Detroit board of commerce held a meeting at the Detroit club Sunday night to arrange the details of shipping a preliminary car load of provisions and bedding north Meadway and Gov. Warner directed Adj. Gen. McGurren of the state troops to take the initiative in similar measures at Grand Rapids. The Detroit & Mackinac Railroad company has already sent a dozen car loads of provisions, lumber and hay into the burned district from Bay City.

Town of Ossineke Threatened.

President J. D. Hawks of the Detroit & Mackinac railroad received word Sunday that forest fires were seriously threatening the town of Ossineke, south of Alpena on Thursday bay.

Quartermaster Gen. W. J. Rogers, of the state troops, who was sent into the burned district to investigate conditions, telegraphed Gov. Warner to-day that there was no need of troops, as the fire situation was improved, temporarily at least. The immediate need, Gen. Rogers reported, was for bedding and food for the refugees and fodder for horses and cattle.

"Fred M. Warner, Governor."

Known Dead Are Twenty-Six.

Alpena, Mich. — Reports from the flame-swept counties in this section of the state indicate improvement in the fire situation. But the necessity for immediate substantial relief for the refugees is hourly becoming greater.

But one fresh report of loss of life came into Alpena Sunday. Henry Hines, his wife and two children are believed to have been cremated on their farm near Canthro.

Between Metz and Rogers City seven more bodies have been found, making a total of 26 lives that are known to have been lost in Presque Isle and Alpena counties since Thursday night.

Rogers City, reported in imminent danger, has been saved. South Rogers is also safe.

After Young Cudahy Again.

Omaha, Neb. — A stranger was found in the home of Edward A. Cudahy, the millionaire packer, Tuesday night, who made his escape out of an open window on the second floor when a servant girl screamed. He was well dressed and wore a silk hat. He was in the room of Edward Cudahy, Jr., who was kidnapped seven years ago.

Attempt to Slay a Priest.

Chicago. — An attempt to assassinate the Rev. J. K. Fielding of Corpus Christi Roman Catholic church, one of the most widely known priests in America, was made in the church vestibule Sunday afternoon by an unidentified man. The stranger fired two shots at Father Fielding after a struggle and then made his escape.

Dr. Mann Declines Bishopric.

Washington. — Giving as a controlling reason that his work in Boston is still unfinished, Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann, pastor of Trinity Episcopal church of that city, has declined the position of bishop of Washington, to succeed Bishop Satterlee.

Captain of Bark Drowns Self.

Pensacola, Fla. — The Norwegian bark Majorca, which arrived here Sunday from Buenos Ayres, reported the suicide by drowning of her master, Capt. Ellersen, at sea.

Cincinnati Capitalist Dead.

Cincinnati. — Hiram Harper Peck, 59 years of age, a leading capitalist of this city, died at his home Sunday morning of paralysis. His illness was indirectly caused by the Jamaica earthquake of some months ago. Mr. Peck was in Jamaica at that time.

Three Quakes in California.

Salinas, Cal. — Three slight earthquakes shocks were felt here Sunday. The first was felt at 12:22 a. m. and the last at 4:39 p. m. No damage resulted. The shocks were also felt at Hollister.

WAR IN BALKANS AVERTED

TURKEY'S MOBILIZATION ORDER IS CHECK TO BULGARIA.

Both Countries Formally Declare Intentions Peaceful—Quick Diplomatic Work Alone Prevents Hostilities.

Constantinople. — The report that the mobilization of the Turkish troops had been ordered is unfounded. Presumably it arose through the fact that certain battalions of the Anatolian reserves attached to the Saloniki and Adrianople army corps were convoked for the maneuvers in the native districts, and that three battalions were ordered to Constantinople from Macedonia for police service in the capital, these being replaced by an equal number of Redifs from Smyrna.

London. — The Turkish ambassador and the Bulgarian charge d'affaires Sunday emphatically denied the report that war was imminent between the two countries.

Paris. — Bulgaria has backed down, according to Naoum Pasha, the Turkish ambassador, and not only has the probability of war, which appeared imminent Saturday night been eliminated, but an understanding between Bulgaria and Turkey is in sight. The ambassador Sunday practically admitted that Saturday the two countries were on the verge of war and explained that, while his denial of the mobilization of the Turkish troops was literally true, it was equally true that mobilization had been previously ordered and then suspended.

To France largely belongs the honor of opening the way for an understanding between Turkey and Bulgaria before it was too late. From official sources the story is learned of how the crisis was averted at Constantinople. On Friday night a confidential report reached the porte from Sofia that the Bulgarian cabinet was about to resign and would be succeeded by the council for national defense. This was interpreted as a preliminary move to a declaration of war. The Turkish cabinet forthwith was summoned. It deliberated throughout the night and decided not only to order the mobilization of the troops immediately in Asia Minor, but to complete the mobilization in Macedonia.

The French ambassador, M. Constant, was apprised of this decision at two o'clock on Saturday afternoon, and by urgent telegrams informed M. Pichon, the French foreign minister, of the situation. The French foreign office in turn notified M. Paleologue, the French diplomatic agent at Sofia, the result being that at five o'clock, when M. Constant called upon Kiamil Pasha, the grand vizier, to demand an explanation of Turkey's action, he had the pacific assurances of Bulgaria in his pocket.

Explorers Headed for Pole.

First Message Is Received from the Cook Arctic Expedition.

New York. — The first message from Dr. Frederick E. Cook, the arctic explorer, since he started for the pole from a point north of Etah February 26, has been received in this city. It was brought here by Rudolph Franke, who accompanied Dr. Cook on the early stage of his journey and who received it from the explorer by messengers whom he sent back to the winter base after he was well on his way to the north. The message was written March 17, about three weeks after Dr. Cook had started on the last stage of his journey. It was dated "Polar Sea, North of Cape Hubbard," and said that up to that point everything had gone well, although the weather was extremely cold. He was making a straight line for the pole at that time, he said, and expected to be back at the base late in May.

"I am making a straight course for the pole," Dr. Cook wrote. "The boys are doing well and I have plenty of dogs. I hope to succeed. At any rate, I shall make a desperate effort. While I expect to get back by the end of May, still I wish you to be ready to go to Apconie, the island off North Star, where the whalers' steamers come, by the 5th of June, and if I am not back, to go home with the whalers. I think, however, we will be back."

Two Trainmen Fatally Hurt.

Chillicothe, O. — Two trainmen were probably fatally hurt, and many passengers received minor injuries when a passenger train on the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton railroad Sunday afternoon crashed through an open switch into an accommodation, which had been standing all night on a siding at Blinbridge. Engineer Sharp and Fireman Siles of Springfield were caught in the wreckage.

Great Cathedral Started.

St. Louis. — An era of extensive church building in St. Louis culminated Sunday in the laying of the corner-stone of the new Catholic cathedral, which when completed will cost over $2,000,000; and in the dedication of the Second Baptist church at Kings highway and McPherson avenue, which has just been completed at a cost of $250,000.

Woman Teacher Is Suicide.

Decatur, Ill. — Miss Anna Carson, a teacher in the Urbana public schools, came to Decatur and committed suicide by shooting herself in the head. The body was found in a field near Decatur Sunday.

Couden Acquitted of Murder.

Lebanon, O. — Frank L. Couden, a well-known politician of Warren county, and cashier of the Federal customs office at Cincinnati, was acquitted by a jury Sunday of the charge of manslaughter.

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

No other medicine has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women or received so many genuine testimonials as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Almost every one you meet has either been benefited by it, or has friends who have.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., any woman any day may see the files containing over one million one hundred thousand letters from women seeking health, and here are the letters in which they openly state over their own signatures that they were cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

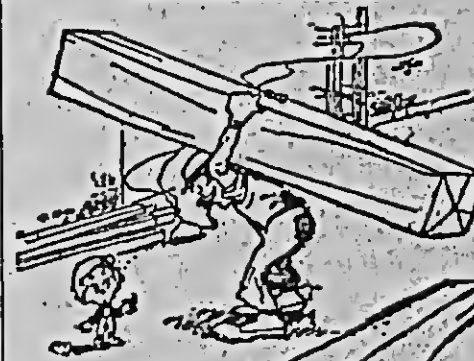

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved many women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made from roots and herbs, without drugs, and is wholesome and harmless.

The reason why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the feminine organism, restoring it to a healthy normal condition.

Women who are suffering from these distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

Theodore P. Roberts had a fluent command of language, both in speaking and writing, and was well liked by everybody. He could secure the attention of a negligent publisher if need be. CURE

TO SUPPORT DENEEN

IRISH-AMERICANS OF CHICAGO HAVE FORMED CLUB.

FOR REELECTION OF GOVERNOR

Men of All Parties, Influenced by the Splendid Record of the Administration, United to Keep It in Office.

The Square Deal Deneen club has been organized in Chicago by Irish-American citizens, among them several former Democrats. This club is to be non-partisan in character, its main purpose being to place information before the electors regarding the achievements of the Deneen administration. Officers were elected as follows:

President—Thomas H. Cannon, high chief ranger of the Catholic Order of Foresters.

Vice-President—Daniel Hanrahan, former president of the United Irish Society of Chicago.

Secretary—Maj. Joseph Moore, Seventh regiment, I. N. G.

Assistant Secretary—Capt. John V. Cline, First regiment, I. N. G.

Treasurer—John E. Mooney.

It is the intention of the Square Deal Deneen club to make a systematic canvass throughout the county of Cook for membership through application blanks, which have been put in circulation. Headquarters have been established at the Grand Pacific hotel, room 100, with Capt. John V. Cline in charge.

Big Committee Named.

The following executive committee, representing every ward in Chicago, was selected at the meeting: Timothy D. Hurley, Arthur E. Dixon, Thomas J. Sullivan, Capt. John J. Balger, Byron V. Kallaloy, Thomas J. Fitzgerald, Maurice M. Shay, Thomas F. Burke, Edward J. Moran, Maj. M. J. Hallway, Thomas J. Murphy, Thomas J. Hickey, George W. Dixon, John P. Hayes, Dr. David L. Sullivan, Joseph J. Sullivan, William J. Keenan, J. F. Keenan, Dr. G. L. McLaughlin, George E. Gibbons, Maurice F. Begley, Charles O'Malley, James F. Scanlon, Joseph P. Kain, P. J. McShane, James A. Kearns, John T. Burke, John F. Tyrell, Alderman John Burns, John Dwyer, James G. Cline, John C. Cannon, James B. Mooney, John Shins, Henry J. Lynch, John W. Ginty, John P. Hughes, Francis P. Brady, John W. Norton, James W. Breen.

Resolutions which were adopted set forth the club's object as follows:

"The Square Deal Deneen club is organized for the purpose of respectfully calling the attention of the voters of the state to the administration of the present governor, Charles S. Deneen.

Club is Non-Partisan.

"Our organization is non-partisan. We desire especially to call attention to the excellent management of the state charitable institutions, as conducted by the present board of public charities, which, in our opinion, is the best board the state has ever had. The plan drawn up by this board for making the state institutions curative rather than institutions of discipline is one of the foremost reforms, in so far as it relates to the unfortunate inmates of our state, that has ever been accomplished since the institutions have been in existence. Insane patients are now treated from a scientific standpoint, so that the percentage of cure is now far in advance as compared with past years.

"The non-partisan appointment plan has been made for years in relation to the appointments of the state charitable institutions, and seems now to be the plea of certain politicians, including the opponent of Gov. Deneen. Gov. Deneen's record on this question is that he has safeguarded the state institutions from the politicians, and established the non-partisan plan in bringing them within the protection of the existing civil service law."

WAS IN POSITION TO KNOW.

Great Value of Charities Conference—Indorsement of Deneen.

The thirteenth annual conference of the non-political, non-sectarian and disinterested body of men and women that watches the state institutions has adopted a resolution commending the "excellent work" of the Deneen board of charities, approving the things done as well as the things contemplated and planned, and giving the governor due credit for calling to his aid so expert and earnest a group of citizens.

If one-tenth of the charges manufactured and faked up for factional purposes against Gov. Deneen, the state board and the institutions, had any foundation in the facts, the conference would not only have withheld approval, but would have discharged its plain duty to the people and the wards of the state by protesting against the evil-breeding policies and demanding vigorous measures of correction. It has the independence and the disposition to tell the truth.

But the conference knew that the Deneen record and the record of the state board—the best Illinois has ever had—deserved praise, not blame, as a record of genuine and substantial improvement.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Democratic Hope Vain.

Gov. Deneen was elected governor in 1904 by over 300,000 majority; yet the Democrats hope to beat him with a man who was a member of the Knights of the Golden Circle.—Marion Leader.

American Coinage.
Ninety per cent. of the coinage by the United States in the fiscal year of 1908 consisted of gold eagles, a coin which probably not one in a hundred people sees as often as once a year. Altogether the coinage of the country comprised 17 different varieties, seven of which were for the Philippine islands in pesos and centavos, and one of which of the same denomination was for account of the Mexican government. The number of pennies turned out averaged a little less than one for each inhabitant. The total coinage for continental United States was $215,714,862. This has been one of the most active years in the history of national minting. Of this amount $179,238,337 were in gold and $36,532,477 in silver, or about the ratio of one of silver to 12 of gold.—Wall Street Journal.

More Important.
"Ah! Mrs. Newcomb," said the upplish Mrs. Subbubs, "my many social duties have prevented me from calling upon you as I should. However, I will surely return your visit some day—"
"Oh! that doesn't matter much," replied Mrs. Newcomb promptly; "but I do wish you'd return the groceries you've borrowed from time to time."—

POPULAR AUTHORS.
The Preacher Finds Ready Sale for His Books in His Parish.

Bent on an errand of mercy, a city prowler made his way into a strange neighborhood. What impressed him most was the bookstore windows. In every one for blocks around were stacks of a new book he had never heard of by a writer of whom he had never heard.

"Who is this man?" he finally asked.
"Why is he so popular hereabouts?"
"He is the pastor of the Presbyterian church down in the next block," said the stationer. "Every bookeller in the neighborhood is making a specialty of his book. That is the usual way of doing things when a clergyman brings out a new book. Anybody else might appear in the publishers' catalogue every month without arousing local pride, but with the preachers it is different. When a minister turns author that old saw about the prophet being without honor in his own country is disproved with a vengeance. Every spring there is a considerable literary output by the pastors of New York churches. The first place where these volumes are put on sale is the bookstores near the church where the minister preaches, and usually the largest sales are made there."

Where the Octopus Abounds.
"The rocky coast of Brittany," said a life guard, "abounds in octopus—the plevre, as they say down there."
"Walk a Braton beach at low tide—the beach of St. Lunsaire, for instance —and you will easily find in a half mile a score or more of perfect cut-tlefish of these friable white bones that birds love."

"They are from six inches to a foot or more in length, snowy and very prettily shaped; they make nice ash trays. The peasants gather them for bird food, for ash trays, and also, I believe, for cigarette cases."

"They are bones of the octopus, and their abundance is a convincing proof of the octopus in those rock-strewn waters of France."—Milaneapolis Journal.

The Queen's Coachman.
A queen's coachman is a personage of no small importance. Certainly the coachman to her late majesty, Queen Victoria, had a befitting sense of the dignity and responsibility of his position. On the occasion of the jubilee of 1887 he was asked if he was driving any of the royal and imperial guests at that time quartered in Buckingham palace. "No, sir," was his reply. "I am the queen's coachman; I don't drive the riff-raff."—London Telegraph.

OASES OF CHILE'S DESERT.
They Play a Great Part in Development of Nitrate Beds.

Northern Chile, which is so largely mountain or desert, is generally regarded as a forbidding wilderness, but here may be found a number of oases, the most conspicuous of which are Pica and Matilla.

It has been found that in various parts of the great Atacama desert the earth underneath the surface layer of sand or salt is sufficiently moist to grow crops, capillary attraction spreading the water through the soil.

The rainless Atacama desert is the scene of the greatest industry of its kind in the world, yielding enormous quantities of nitrates used to enrich the fields of Europe and the United States.

The oases play a very important economic role in the industries of the region, supplying vegetables and food stuffs for the support of the workmen, alfalfa for the cattle and various fruits, and also serving as timber producers for the nitrate works, which require much fuel.

There is no part of the world where agriculture is more intensively carried on than in these green spots in the Atacama desert.—Zion's Herald.

What's an Inch of Rain?
The rain fell in buckets, the thunder racketed terribly, and the lightning drew zigzag lines of bright gold upon the violet sky.

"So you, too, don't know what an inch of rain is exactly," said the weather clerk, as he looked at his rain measuring instrument. "Very few people do, it seems. I'll explain it to you."

"An acre is 6,272,640 square inches.
An inch of water on an acre is therefore 6,272,640 cubic inches. That amount at 2.27 cubic inches to the gallon, equals 22,000 gallons, or 220,000 pounds, or 100 tons."

"An inch of rain is, in other words, rain falling at the rate of 100 tons to the acre."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Lee is said to be ten feet thick where Peary is. It will be thicker than that in Lincoln, Neb., the day after election.

It has been demonstrated that an Erie canal boat is a good deal more reliable for purposes of navigation than a balloon.

The good old summertime had nothing to offer in the way of weather that was superior to the styles provided by October.

The British Government has now built a great battleship with the remarkable speed of twenty-seven knots an hour, an accomplishment which practically puts all the dreadnaughts of the other powers out of it and relegates them to the junk heap. It means the creation of a new class of battleships, speedier than the fastest cruisers. It means that the immense sums spent on modern navies is useless and that there will have to be another and greater expenditure.

The New York World, which is mildly supporting Mr. Bryan, in an election estimate based on careful inquiry reaches the conclusion that Mr. Bryan can count on but 178 electoral votes with the same certainty that Mr. Taft can count on 205. These figures omit Indiana, Maryland, Nebraska, New York, Ohio and West Virginia as "doubtful."

No information that the Inter Ocean has been able to obtain, and no argument it has seen advanced, leads reasonably to the conclusion, in its judgment, that either Mr. Bryan or Mr. Taft will fail to carry his own state. With Nebraska's eight and Ohio's twenty-three added to the above figures we have 228 for Mr. Taft to 186 for Mr. Bryan.

Once sure of Ohio, Mr. Taft can win with Indiana alone, for that would give him 243. Once sure of Ohio, he can win with West Virginia and Maryland, for they would also give him 243. With New York he can win without either Indiana, West Virginia or Maryland, or even Ohio, for he would still have 244.

Mr. Bryan, however, might carry all the states considered doubtful by the World, except New York, and still lose. With Nebraska, Maryland, West Virginia, Indiana, and Ohio his total would be but 239, or three short of the necessary 242. Or if he should lose Ohio, as he probably will, and Indiana, as he probably will, and carry New York, he would still have but 240.

It is generally believed that the chances of Mr. Taft are the better in West Virginia and of Mr. Bryan the better in Maryland. On the basis of Ohio and West Virginia to Mr. Taft and of Nebraska and Maryland to Mr. Bryan the respective totals would be 235 and 194.

On this assumption Mr. Taft would win with either New York or Indiana, while Mr. Bryan must get both New York and Indiana to win. In sum, there does not seem to be any probable combination by which Mr. Bryan can win without both New York and Indiana. On the other hand, Mr. Taft can win with either New York or Indiana, and with New York he could lose Ohio and still win.

On a cold mathematical calculation of probabilities, after considering the number of states which must be won by either from among those regarded as really doubtful, Mr. Taft's prospects seem considerably better than Mr. Bryan's.

Mr. Taft could win without New York. Mr. Bryan cannot win without New York. That is the fact that makes New York the battle ground of the final days of the campaign.

The Democratic party will do its best in New York because New York's electoral vote, as well as Indiana's, are indispensable to Mr. Bryan.

The Republican party must do its best in New York because its votes are more than Indiana's, West Virginia's and Maryland's put together, and with New York Mr. Taft could lose Ohio and still win.

David Parker, of Fayette, N. Y., a veteran of the civil war, who lost a foot at Gettysberg, says: "The good Electric Bitters have done me more than five hundred dollars to me. Would Mortgage the Farm.

A farmer on Rural Route 2, Empire, Ga., W. A. Floyd by name, says: Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured the worst sores I ever saw: one on my hand and one on my leg. It is worth more than its weight in gold. A Healthy Family.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—ever from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stopping poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take enough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little later—Congress says "Put it on the label if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good! Hereafter for all ordinary reasons mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop packages with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Stomach troubles would more quickly disappear if the idea of treating the cause, rather than the effect, would come into practice. A tiny, inside, hidden nerve, says Dr. Shoop, governs and gives strength to the stomach. A branch also goes to the heart, and one to the kidneys. When these "inside nerves" fail, then the organs must falter. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is directed specifically to these failing nerves. Within 48 hours after starting the Restorative treatment patients say they realize a gain. Sold by J. H. Swan.

HE SEES PROGRESS

HIGH AUTHORITY PRAISES WORK OF BOARD OF CHARITIES.

PUTS ILLINOIS IN THE LEAD

Dr. Adolph Meyer, Gleeve Testimony to Vast Improvement Brought About Through Efforts of Present Administration.

Dr. Adolph Meyer, the director of the Psychopathic Institute of the New York state hospital, who has been called to the chair of psychiatry in the Johns Hopkins university, placed his stamp of approval upon the Illinois State Board of Charities and Illinois institutions, in a paper read at the state conference of charities, which met in Rock Island. Dr. Meyer was pathologist at the Eastern Hospital for the Insane, Kankakee, in 1895. After reviewing briefly the conditions in Illinois as he knew them, he said: "Having seen Illinois during a period of vehement fermentation and unrest I could follow even the sad period of last winter without much doubt as to who would win. There was certainly no doubt as to the quality of the members of the state board, the kind of people back of them, and your Gov. Deussen. As I come back to you I find a remarkable progress here as elsewhere; a strong and most energetic central board, and hospitals rising vigorously from a kind of glacial period of political domination; a state board of wonderful constructive capacity and with achievements which I feel sure even the hostile forces can never wipe out; a state board and hospitals which have given the other states many a valuable new thought and demonstrations of new possibilities. Here is a fertile ground for a lasting achievement. There still is much to be done. Illinois has a grand opportunity, but for that it must uphold the best policy that has ever been shaped for her."

Great Work in Illinois.

After referring more in detail to the progress that has been made in the care and treatment of the insane in the United States, Dr. Meyer returned to the Illinois situation. He said:

"Your state board has done excellent constructive work to improve the inner working of your institutions and to create a foundation for the culminating step of efficient management of the greater problem. Illinois is today in the lead largely through the strenuous efforts of Miss Lathrop in bringing about natural relations between the nursing forces of the state hospitals and general hospitals."

Kankakee in 1895.

Dr. Meyer then defined what benefits might be obtained from a central psychopathic institute such as has been established by Illinois at Kankakee. This institute, he said, must act with the idea that all charitable institutions are a unit. He said: "The central institute must help each individual hospital to a complete organization of its work, not in buying laboratory outfits to be stored away and covered with dust, but to meet the demands of the day. When I first came to Kankakee there positively was less medical equipment available than I should personally have ventured to depend on to go into general practice—and all that in a hospital for 2,000 patients with a corps of physicians who were thus reduced to a standard of practice with which they should have been unfitted for competition with ordinary practice outside. Conditions began to change, and they have changed and they will change more yet until standards are generally established and under control. The hospitals will rise to the ambition of being leaders in the distribution of information, the initiators of helpful activity and the contributors to research, and will be examples of the generally accepted axiom that only he who is progressive is capable of holding his own."

Changes Bad For State.

"If we ask ourselves 'why have the hospitals gone through so many fluctuations,' we must admit that it is largely through fluctuations in the leadership and the preposterous dependence on that big game which our people are not willing yet to abandon—the expensive and demoralizing game of politics in the sense of enrichment of the adherents to a party organization and jealousy about funds used with different principles. It is absolutely essential that the intelligent people of a state like Illinois band together to enforce with both parties the endorsement of its strong and efficient well tried and well supported central body, call it State Board of Charities, or whatever you like; a body which can save the energies of the men in charge of our public institutions by giving them a chance to do their work instead of being pestered by unprincipled political interference."

Experts Needed for Inquiry.

"The main issue seems to have been whether or not Illinois wants to give a chance to the best equipped persons it ever had to do any work at all. Regardless of the fact that the time of our officials is crowded with duties and that untrained investigators are wholly incompetent, legislative committees have been touring and interfering for weeks with the routine of hospitals where an investigation by trained persons should have been obtained, satisfying at the same time the questions of the legislature and the anxious questions of the people, not with a mere volume of opinions, but with facts which can be used."

SHALL THE PEOPLE RULE?

Roger Sullivan and his followers ruled the 1904 convention at Springfield and elected the delegates to the Democratic national convention. At St. Louis Bryan denounced it as a "train robber" convention.

Sullivan and his fellows have controlled the Democratic state committee for years. After Bryan denounced him as an agent of the trusts in 1906 Sullivan got even by having the Peoria convention endorse the Nebraska after a show of strength which demonstrated that the Chicago boss absolutely controlled the situation.

At the Denver convention Sullivan again controlled the Illinois delegation. Bryan swallowed previous denunciations of Sullivan, gave him an immunity bath and accepted him as a full-fledged member of the party's highest council, notwithstanding he had said:

"He is a high official in a franchise-seeking corporation. He is constantly seeking favors at the hands of the government. He cannot serve the public while he is seeking to promote the financial interests of the corporation with which he is connected."

"I do not hesitate to express the opinion that no man running on the Democratic ticket in Illinois is entitled to the support of the Democrats in this crisis, who either stands for Mr. Sullivan or is afraid to oppose him."

Adm. E. Stevenson stands for Mr. Sullivan.

Women in London Council.

London has just elected its second woman borough councillor, Miss M. E. Balkwell. The first woman elected to the office was Miss E. E. Lawrence. Both women are returned from the borough of Hampstead.

BRYAN IN TWO ATTITUDES.

The Ideal and the Practical Seem Somewhat to Conflict.

Mr. Bryan is often in Chicago. If he is uninformed as to the conditions of Democracy here and in this state he has the opportunity to inform himself. It is fair to ask him if he would bar out the men upon whom his party must depend for any chance of success which it may have in Illinois.

Would Mr. Bryan sacrifice the vote of the First ward rather than accept it from the Hon. Michael Kenna, or does Mr. Bryan regard Mr. Kenna as a conspicuous success in an idealistic Democratic party? Would he sacrifice the Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh wards rather than accept them from the Hon. William Loeffler, or does he regard Mr. Loeffler as an example of the purity in politics on which all political endeavor must be based?

Would he sacrifice the Eighteenth ward rather than accept it from the Hon. John Brennan, or the Nineteenth rather than take it from the Hon. John Powers? Does he regard the vote of Illinois as undesirable if it comes through the agency of Roger C. Sullivan, George Brennan, and Kenna, Loeffler, Brennan, Powers, et al.?

Strange company for an idealist—admirable company for a practical man. A puerile issue? Granted, but it is Mr. Bryan's and it does not gain dignity or importance because it is an abandoned issue as applied to his own party and "paramount" as applied to the other.

The concessions of the idealistic Bryan to the practical Bryan are more important. The conflict between the Bryan who thinks things and the Bryan who does things may be embarrassing to the candidate, but it is illuminating to the spectator. Too often he finds that what has been beautiful has not been political and too often he deserts the beautiful.

There was much pertinence in the statement with which President Roosevelt called to Mr. Bryan's attention an essential difference between the Republican and the Democratic candidate for president—Chicago Tribune.

GREAT CHANGE SINCE 1892.

Chicago Inter Ocean Was Then Real Exponent of Republicanism.

The Chicago Inter Ocean, which is now so enthusiastically in favor of "Gen." Stevenson for governor, was very much opposed to him in 1892. Under date of June 26, the Inter Ocean contained the following on page 12:

"The spokesmen in the party point with pride to Stevenson as the most expert agent ever placed in charge of an official gullotine. No man ever kept a gullotine so well oiled and sharp-edged as did the Illinois man when he had charge of the execution of Republican postmasters. He did not take hold of it as a job to be paid for by the day, to be lengthened out into as many pay days as possible, but he went at it by the job, as though he had taken the contract in a jump and proposed to earn his money in the shortest time possible. As the athletic headman of the Cleveland administration Gen. Stevenson commended himself to the old-time Democracy, and especially to Tammany."
